

City's 5 worst intersections

- GREAT NORTHERN ROAD AND SECOND LINE EAST
- MCNABB STREET AND BLACK ROAD
- NORTH STREET AND SECOND LINE EAST
- GREAT NORTHERN AND NORTHERN AVE.
- BRUCE STREET AND WELLINGTON STREET EAST.

SEE PAGE A5 FOR THE STORY

INSIDE

TRANSITION DEMANDED

UN General Assembly votes to condemn the Syrian government. Page A10

SHINGWAUK COMMEMORATION

With the spirit and intent embodied within Shingwauk sites, the Children of Shingwauk Association, Shingwauk Education Trust and Iversity hereby designate these lands and buildings as a National Memorial to all those who lived or more of the many Residential Schools on the Island. A special place in our hearts for those children who returned home. May their memories live on. The above parties August 3, 2012 Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario

RACHELE LABRECQUE Sault Star

Algoma University president Richard Myers (far left), Daisy Kostus, president of the Children of Shingwauk Alumni Association, Chief Lyle Sayers of Garden River First Nation and Chief Dean Sayers of Batchewana First Nation stand next to the Shingwauk Residential School National Memorial. The memorial, which honours children who died at residential schools, will be placed on the grounds of the university. It was unveiled at the Shingwauk 2012 commemoration and gathering conference Friday.

OLYMPICS

Best Algoma rowers do it indoors

MICHAEL PURVIS
The Sault Star

When Gavin Grant dips a paddle in the water, it's usually just for fun, but don't tell Grant he's not a serious rower.

Grant, 50, pulls off between 80,000 and 100,000 metres a week on his indoor rowing machine, and he's not alone.

It's how an increasing number of athletes in Algoma are sticking with the sport of rowing, despite the area's lack of an organized club.

"Everybody trains on indoor rowers, all your Olympic class athletes," said Grant.

But Grant and a number of other Algoma rowers are among a dedicated group who not only train on their rowing